P170001 - Executive Program in Defense Decision Making

The program has been structured to emphasize the impact of transformation on security and defense decision making in contemporary global environment. Main themes include: threat assessment, development of national security strategies, capability-based approaches, defense institution building, roles and missions of security and defense forces, and intelligence structures and processes.

P170024 - Defense Governance

This seminar examines the fundamentals of governance within the defense sector in order to strengthen participants' performance in their particular position as well as equip them to support capacity-building efforts within their system. Topics addressed include: the design of various governance approaches and the necessary functions within defense governance such as: policy/strategy development, human and financial resource management, logistics, and relationships/responsibilities between actors.

P170036 - Security, Governance, & Institutional Capacity Building (Africa - French & English)

The main theme of this program is to examine the interfaces between security and governance common to developing countries in the region. An important aspect of discussion will be to distinguish between traditional security (the state level) and human security (the individual level), and to discuss how (or if) governments should use armed forces to do both.

P179840 - Women in Strategic Defense & Security Decision Making

The seminar aims to support countries all over the world to develop and implement gender policies, in particular policies aimed at augmenting the representation of and the prospects for women in decision-level positions within the executive, legislative, and judicial branches, including women in the security and defense decision-making arenas.

P159200 - Principles of Defense Acquisition Management

This course provides a theoretical examination of defense acquisition and logistics management combined with practical application in a variety of national settings. International best practices are discussed along with the challenges associated with implementation.

P159202 - Principles of Defense Procurement & Contracting

This course provides a theoretical and practical examination of all phases of both pre and post award contract phase. International best practices are examined along with the challenges associated with institutionalizing efficient and effective procurement systems.

P179069 - International Defense Acquisition Negotiations

This course focuses on planning and preparing for negotiations with an emphasis on negotiation of complex issues international armaments contracts. Extensive in-class negotiations are conducted. Participants learn their negotiating style tendencies and how and when to adapt their negotiation style given the behavior and goals of the parties.

P179623 - Principles of Defense Acquisition & Contract Management (Spanish)

This course combines the Defense Acquisition Management (P159200) and Procurement and Contracting (P159202) courses into one course offering with Spanish language instruction with practical application within the Latin American context.

P179841 - Principles of Defense Acquisition & Logistics Management (French)

This course provides a theoretical and practical examination of defense acquisition management with an emphasis on institutional capacity building, logistics planning, and building and sustaining accountability in defense acquisition decision making.

P170370 - Cybersecurity Policy & Practice

This course is intended for nations that are interested in developing capabilities to defend cyberspace from attack. National security, economic prosperity, and citizen safety are threatened daily through exploitation, intrusion or disruption in cyberspace by criminal, transnational, or regional competitors. This offering prepares decision makers to effectively consider, design, and implement policies and practices for safeguarding the use of cyberspace.

P179548 - Civil-Military Approaches to Maritime Security

This course covers transnational maritime threats (terrorism, armed robbery at sea, smuggling and trafficking of arms, drugs and people, IUU fishing, cyber, and pollution), and provides tools, strategies, and best practices to address those threats. It emphasizes how to enhance MDA, maritime governance, port security, institutional capacity, and human capital development.

P79018 - Civil-Military Responses to Terrorism

This course provides a thorough understanding of terrorism in all its forms, emphasizing strategy formulation and international cooperation. The program utilizes case studies and a table top exercise to stimulate discussion; which assist in providing participants with the insight needed to design successful strategies to defeat terrorist networks, protect citizens and property, and address the root causes of terrorism.

P171063 - Reintegration of Ex-Combatants & Violent Extremists

Dealing with ex-fighters as a conflict winds down or a peace agreement is implemented or as they leave violent extremist organizations is tremendously difficult yet hugely important for achieving durable peace. This course provides practical approaches and best practices from integration into the national security forces to community-based reintegration programs, among others.

P170030 - Managing Ethnic Conflict & Religious Violence

The workshop introduces contemporary thinking on what causes and animates ethnic and religious tensions and violence. Participants learn conflict analysis, conflict management, and conflict resolution techniques appropriate for use in the home countries or within international peace operations. In addition, the topics of prevention and recovery are also explored.

P173019 - Security Risks of Refugees & Displaced Persons

The response to migration and displacement crises is a recurrent requirement for armed forces and their governments both at home and during international peace operations. These situations affect both the displaced people and the host population in dramatic ways that must be addressed in short order. This course addresses preparation, response, and collaboration with the international community for these crises. Special emphasis is placed on the security aspects of migration and displacement crises.

P170475 - Civil-Military Coordination in Disaster Relief

This seminar emphasizes the knowledge and process skills that are needed for government civilian agencies, non-governmental organizations, inter-governmental organizations, and the armed forces to work more effectively alongside each other in disaster response at home and abroad.
