P179840 - Women, Leadership, and National Defense
This course supports partner nations as they develop and implement gender policies aimed at augmenting the representation and prospects for women in security and defense institutions. It provides practical, strategic, and political insights into women's inclusion and promotion within decision and policymaking processes.

P179847 - Comprehensive Approaches to Counter Hybrid Threats
This course examines national, regional, and collective security capacity and capabilities requirements to support a comprehensive approach to countering hybrid threats. Participants will identify key public and private organizations; consider the impact of political processes and explore policies and cooperation frameworks; and analyze methodology that supports operational and strategic understanding, willingness, collaboration, and execution of a viable approach to counter hybrid threats.

P179623 - Principles of Defense Acquisition & Contract Management (English/Spanish)
This course provides participants with an understanding of the important concepts and lessons learned associated with defense acquisition decision-making and contract management. It is regionally focused for the Latin American and Caribbean context and conducted with Spanish language simultaneous interpretation.

P179548 - Fundamentals of Maritime Security
This course covers transnational maritime threats (terrorism, armed robbery at sea, smuggling and trafficking of arms, drugs and people, IUU fishing, cyber, and pollution), and provides tools, strategies, and best practices to address those threats. It emphasizes how to enhance maritime domain awareness, maritime governance, port security, institutional capacity, and human capital development.

P170001 - Executive Program in Defense Decision-Making
The goal of this course is to empower participants with the knowledge and skill sets needed to be effective decision-makers, and act as agents of change to transform their security institutions to address ever-evolving national security challenges.

P159200 - Principles of Defense Acquisition Management
This course provides participants with an understanding of the important concepts associated with defense acquisition and logistics decision-making in a variety of national settings. Participants will examine the complete defense acquisition life cycle from planning through equipment disposal. International best practices are discussed along with challenges and lessons learned.

P159202 - Principles of Defense Procurement and Contracting
This course provides a theoretical and practical examination of all phases of the contracting process. Fundamental concepts are discussed for both national and global defense contracting. International best practices are examined along with the challenges associated with institutionalizing efficient and effective procurement processes.

P179069 - International Defense Acquisition Negotiations
This course focuses on planning and preparing for negotiations with an emphasis on negotiation of complex issues in international armaments contracts. Particular emphasis is placed on the strategies, techniques and characteristics of good negotiators. Participants learn their negotiating style tendencies and how and when to adapt their negotiation style given the behavior and goals of the parties.

P170370 - Cybersecurity Policy & Practice
This course helps develop capabilities to defend cyberspace from attack. National security, economic prosperity, and citizen safety are threatened daily through exploitation, intrusion or disruption in cyberspace by criminal, transnational, or regional competitors. This offering explores cyber concepts and evolving technologies for decision-makers to design and implement policies and practices for safeguarding the use of cyberspace.

P179928 - National Resilience for Defense & Security
This course will orient participants to successful "whole-of-government" resilience models, in which all facets of society contribute to keeping their nation safe, sovereign, and functional. It will emphasize planning considerations and capabilities requirements for countering full spectrum threats and hazards that target the civil population and their access to security, timely and reliable information, and essential goods and services.

P170475 - Civil-Military Coordination in Disaster Relief
This course develops a comprehensive understanding of how national governments organize and use their armed forces to support domestic disaster response and international operations. It emphasizes cross-community understanding that focuses on the ways that armed forces, government civilian agencies, non-governmental organizations, and intergovernmental organizations can work more effectively alongside each other in disaster relief.

P179018 - Civil-Military Responses to Terrorism
This course gives those who drive and are responsive to domestic and international counterterrorism efforts with tools to develop effective, integrated, and forward-looking measures that go beyond force alone to prevent, combat, and contain terrorism and build resilience to terroristic violence. The course aims to deepen participants' understanding of problem sets that create conditions for terrorism.

P179931 - Institutional Capacity Building for Logistics
This course provides senior military leaders and civilian ministerial-level personnel with an opportunity to better comprehend and apply logistics management. The aim is to support the professionalization of logistics forces and strengthen defense and security force capabilities from a public administration and civil-military relations perspective. Course activities are designed to support participants' efforts to better assess their logistics requirements and influence logistics policy and resourcing strategy.

P170030 - Managing Internal Conflict
The course explores internal conflicts such as insurgency, separatism, large-scale criminal violence, and ethnic, communal, or religious-based violence. Many countries confront these situations at home and abroad during peace operations. The course also addresses international issues that affect internal conflict, including the use of proxies or transnational ideologies.

P179938 - Developing Cyber Organizations and Workforces
This course focuses on establishing an organization and workforce capable of conducting defensive missions in cyberspace takes careful, deliberate planning and collaborative relationships across a ministry and across government. It provides concepts and knowledge necessary to lead the development of an organizations' cyber strategy, cyber policy, cyber budgeting, cyber acquisition, and cyber workforce.

P179927 - Building Institutional Capacity in the Maritime Security Sector
By demonstrating current operational doctrine, organization and global "best practices" for the planning and execution processes required to protect a nation's territorial seas and exclusive economic zone (EEZ), this course will assist both civilian and military maritime security practitioners and decision-makers better understand current and emerging threats to prepare and implement appropriate service, interagency and regional responses at the operational and strategic levels. The course will cover risk analysis, maritime governance, and enhancing maritime domain awareness (MDA) capabilities.

P179976 - Women, Peace, and Security in Peacekeeping Operations
This course aim is to develop understanding of the United Nations (UN) Women, Peace, and Security (WPS) agenda, specifically its importance and implications for national peacekeeping commitments and training. The course assists participants to effectively support the WPS agenda as military members of a peacekeeping mission. Participants will discuss uniformed women's participation in peacekeeping – including barriers, opportunities, and linkages – to peacekeeping capabilities and identify lessons learned and implementation strategies on gender responsive peacekeeping from current peacekeeping operations.

P179898 - Strategies and Capabilities for Cyber Challenges
This course equips participants with the knowledge and skills to understand cyber threats, vulnerabilities, and their consequences for national security and military operations. The course explores strategies and capabilities to maintain an advantage over actors who seek to exploit, disrupt, or damage critical networks, systems, and services that our societies and militaries depend upon. Instructors highlight the importance of a comprehensive approach that applies whole-of-government coordination, regional collaboration, and public-private partnership to counter cyber-enabled malicious actors across the spectrum of conflict.

P179897- Securing the State: Building Institutions for National Security
This course equips participants with the skills needed to utilize capabilities-based assessments to identify capability gaps in the security and defense arenas and explores how to prepare institutions to address the national security threats. The course offers approaches to ensure healthy civil-military relations and interagency coordination to ensure effective, whole-of-government responses to national security challenges.
